

Financial compliance you can count on

Being responsible for training in one of the most regulated industries is no small task. Training on subjects such as regulations AA, B, D, E, Z, Bank Secrecy Act, PCI compliance, anti-money laundering and more presents a challenge to banks, financial professionals, investment firms, financial institutions and, indeed, all organizations and professionals in the financial industry.

More often than not, these courses are met with resistance due to historically stale and un-engaging content. Meaning that not only are organizations spending valuable training budget on unappealing content, but employees can put themselves and the company at risk of lengthy investigations or audits if courses aren't testing for comprehension.
